

Join our CROP Hunger Walk... and help families rebuild their lives.

Since an attack by militia, Maliru Muheha has not stayed overnight in her house. As evening falls, she climbs to the nearby hills, to be there before dark.

"I have three teenage daughters, and I don't want to take any risks," says Muheha. "We put the blankets on the ground and try to sleep. It's not easy and we're very tired during the day. It's worst when it rains.

We try to protect ourselves with the banana leaves, but we still get wet and cold."

M. Lintunen/FCA

Long-running military conflicts between rival militias in the Democratic Republic of Congo continue to threaten civilians in some areas of the country, while in other areas families are beginning to restart their lives.

In the northeastern part of the country, many displaced people have returned to their villages. Church World Service is supporting partner efforts to help these families restart their life.

Efforts include assisting 1,200 people with seeds, tools, small breeding livestock, agricultural technical assistance, and reconstruction of a vital farm-to-market road.

CROP: Communities Responding to Overcome Poverty
Our CROP Hunger Walk makes a big difference!
Please sign up today!

CWS/CROP Regional Offices: 888-CWS-CROP

Join our CROP Hunger Walk... and help families rebuild their lives.

Since an attack by militia, Maliru Muheha has not stayed overnight in her house. As evening falls, she climbs to the nearby hills, to be there before dark.

"I have three teenage daughters, and I don't want to take any risks," says Muheha. "We put the blankets on the ground and try to sleep. It's not easy and we're very tired during the day. It's worst when it rains.

We try to protect ourselves with the banana leaves, but we still get wet and cold."

M. Lintunen/FCA

Long-running military conflicts between rival militias in the Democratic Republic of Congo continue to threaten civilians in some areas of the country, while in other areas families are beginning to restart their lives.

In the northeastern part of the country, many displaced people have returned to their villages. Church World Service is supporting partner efforts to help these families restart their life.

Efforts include assisting 1,200 people with seeds, tools, small breeding livestock, agricultural technical assistance, and reconstruction of a vital farm-to-market road.

CROP: Communities Responding to Overcome Poverty
Our CROP Hunger Walk makes a big difference!
Please sign up today!

CWS/CROP Regional Offices: 888-CWS-CROP